SERIOUS OUTBREAKS.

Couple of Exciting Affairs In Connec tion With Strike. Louisville, March 14,-Two outreaks of rather formidable proportions occurred in the business section of the city. The first was precipitated at Fourth and Jefferson streets, the busiest corner in the city, and was caused by a hack driver blocking a Second street car with his back and then attempting to tear off the heavy screen with which all cars are provided for the protection of the mo-tormen. The hack driver was prompt ly arrested, and three policemen start-ed to walk him to the central police station at the city hall, two blocks away. Over 1,000 people surrer around and made attempts to rescre the prisoner. Heavy reinforcements of police prevented this, but the crow! was not dispersed until a score of more of arrests were made. No one was no riously hurt.

The second outbreak occurred at Seventh and Main streets, where a carload of strike-breakers arriving from St. Louis on the Southern ra'lway was being transferred to a subcrban express car. The strike-breake as wetre protected by police during the transfer, but the minute they were aboard the express car a volley of missiles crashed into it, several of those inside being slightly hurt. Here also a large number of arrests were one was seriously injured.

The number of cars in oparetic Wednesday numbered twenty, but al-though they were operated with more regularity and frequency than Tuesday, they were patronized only by a few hardy spirits.

Some were kept running until after dark, there being little interference during the late afternoon on account of a thundre storm, which drove the Bryan Interviewed on Harriman and Other Investigations.

Binghampton, N. Y., March 14 .- A representative of the Associated Pres asked Hon. W. J. Bryan, on his arrival here to fill a lecture engagement, what effect the Harriman and other invest gations would have on the agitation in favor of government ownership or management of railroads. He said:

"The most interesting phase of the situation just now is the refusal of the people to lend money freely to the railroads. The railroad managers say this is due to hostile legislation, but this is a mistake. There has been no hostile legislation of sufficient severity to impair the real value of ratirond ecurities where the railroads hav been honestly conducted upon an hon-est capitalization.

it is because the railroad manage a in a vain effort to terrorize the legis tures, have carried the matter too lar. If any other answer is needed for the nesitancy on the part of the investor the investigations furnish it, for the inquiries have shown to what extenrailroad stocks have been watered. But what is the alternative? Must the government refuse to investigate reen management for fear the mismer aged railroad would no longer be abl to fool the public in buying inflate securities? The sooner the railroad are put on an honest basis the mor secure will the investing public feel.

The man planked down a dollar, crisp and fresh from the treasury. The account was squared; the score was paid. He was a family man and walked across the street to a meat stand and ordered two pounds of round steak. The grocer supplied bim and asked 30 cents as the price. "What?" the man roared. "What! Fifteen cents a pound for round steak! It is a highway robbery!"

And so we go through life prodign! in buying luxury and miserly in buying necessity. That man had no concaption of his illogical action-spending a dollar for liquor that he and his cour rades would have been the better with out and kicking a hole in the ceiling per account of a purchase of beef to the charge of 30 cents that he could ill do without. Man can live without booms, but the man has yet to be invente! who can get along without food,

GOOD COLLATERAL.

The Way Tom Fitch of Nevada Used to "Raise the Wind."

Tom Fitch of Novada was a bright fellow and one of the best writers and stump speakers of the west, but he was thriftless and when he got hard up would resort to almost any means to get a stake.

One day he wrote a scathing denouncing Sharon, then president of the Bank of California and afterward United States senator from Nevada, In it he charged Sharon with almost every crime known to the Decalogue or the statutes. He put the manuscript in a large envelope and walked into the Bank of California. "Here," he said to the cashier, hand ing the package through the window-"here are some securities which I offer as collateral on a loan. Please hand them to Mr. Sharon in person, and I will wait for his answer."

Mr. Sharon was in his private office Breaking the seal of the envelope, be found the speech and read it through. together with a note from Fitch, in forming him that unless he was paid $5,000 he would deliver that speech in every town in the state. In a few minutes the cashler, on Mr. Sharon's or der, reported that the collateral was all right and paid the happy Fitch the desired amount.

Three months afterward, having gone through the money in speculation and dissipation, Mr. Fitch made his appearance with another speech, this time of a very complimentary character, which he promised to deliver at every convenient opportunity for the same amount. This, too, proved good collateral, and the story would never have come to light if Fitch had not, in a moment of drunken frankness, told

He Was Willing.

A good, kind man unfortunately married a shrewish wife, and the woman changed his nature. One morning after his wife had called him a good for nothing loafer and snatched his breakfast away he started off, hungry and sore, for work. A sour looking woman entered the car he was on. She got into a violent dispute with the conductor over her change. Finally, red with rage, she looked about her and said. "Is there a gentleman in this car who will stand by and see a lady insulted?" The hungry man whose na-ture had been spoiled rose eagerly "Yes, madam," he said; "I will,"

The Nature of Love.

Love is the river of life in this world. Think not that ye know it who stand at the little tinkling rill—the first small fountain. Not until you have gone through the rocky gorges and not lost the stream; not until you have gone through the meadow, and the stream has widened and deepened until fleets could ride upon its bosom; not tut? beyond the mendow you have come " the unfathomable ocean and poured your treasures into its depths-not until then can you know what love is.-Henry Ward Beecher.

Takes No Chances

"Remember," said the kind elderly contleman, "that you may be president of the United States," "Yes," answer ed the boy whose father is connected with the race track, "but look at the population of this country. I've only got one chance in millions. I ain't play ing any long shots like that." - Wash
